Win a trip for two to Bonaire

A one-week trip for two people to the Caribbean diving island of Bonaire is the top prize in an online game being run by the Tourism Corporation of Bonaire. The winner and a companion will stay at the island's Divi Flamingo Beach Resort, where a memorable week of "snorkelling, diving, surfing, exploring Washington National Park, or just relaxing in the pleasant 28C climate with a consistent refreshing breeze" is promised.

DIVE 2005, 29 & 30 October Birmingham NEC

There's still time to save £3 on tickets for this year's Birmingham dive show by booking online here. The online price is just £7.50, instead of £10.50 on the door. There's no booking fee - and if you book 8 or more tickets in advance you'll be entered into a free draw to win a Red Sea holiday with Regaldive.

In addition to the Pro Dive prize featured above - and, of course, hundreds of diving exhibitors offering the best prices, choices and information on everything from dive kit and accessories to training and holidays - this year's NEC Dive Show has some special attractions.

Here are 9 very good reasons to come along!

1. WIN! A cruise aboard Aqua Cat worth more than £1050

At Dive 2005, Aqua Cat Cruises is giving away a liveaboard dive cruise for one person valued at US$1895 (£1070)! Operating in the out-islands of the Bahamas, the luxurious Aqua Cat offers passengers private accommodation with no amenity overlooked while they cruise and dive.

2. WIN! A Red Sea diving holiday worth £1150

Don't miss the chance to win a diving holiday for two worth £1150 with Oonasdivers! This impressive show prize includes direct flights to Sharm El Sheikh, plus transfers, 7 nights' accommodation at The Oonas Dive Club, and 6 days' diving/12 dives.

3. WIN! A professional diving course worth £1700!

The Professional Diving Academy is celebrating its first year of diver training by offering Dive 2005 visitors the chance to win a UK Health and Safety Executive
